Palace to accept Señeres' offer to quit

By Christine O. Avendaño

PRESIDENT Macapagal-Arroyo will accept the resignation of the man she had earlier accused of being a destabilizer.

In a news briefing and in a radio interview yesterday, Press Secretary Ignacio Bunye said the President was expected to accept the resignation of Roy Señeres, when he steps down today as chair of the National Labor Relations Commission.

Bunye said Señeres' decision to quit was a personal decision, apparently quashing speculations that Malacañang had pressured the latter to turn in his resignation.

"What we can say, considering the circumstances, in all probability his resignation will be accepted," Bunye told reporters.

Asked whether Malacañang will try to ask Señeres to reconsider his decision, Bunye said the pronouncements of the labor official showed that he had already made up his mind.

Bunye also denied that the Palace had asked Señeres to give up his post when asked by reporters, saying "it was his decision."

Interviewed over dzRH radio, Bunye said he had no information yet on the possible replacement for Señeres at the NLRC.

Señeres announced the other day his plan to quit, saying that the President was no longer happy with him and that the feeling was mutual.

Last April, Ms Arroyo confronted Señeres and accused him of plotting to destabilize the government during a meeting with then US Ambassador Francis Ricciardone and a military official.

The President reportedly disclosed this fact in a meeting with labor leaders a few weeks later.

Señeres, however, had denied the allegations.

On Labor Day, Ms Arroyo announced that she was transferring supervision of the NLRC from the Office of the President to the office of the labor secretary.

Señeres denounced the President's move, saying it was illegal and would require an amendment of the Labor Code.

How to carry P130M: Court to set guidelines

GOVERNMENT prosecutors and lawyers of deposed President Joseph Estrada have been asked by the Sandiganbayan to set the parameters of the proposed ocular inspection at the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas to determine if one man could carry P130 million in cash.

The proposal to settle the issue at the BSP was brought to the antigraft court two weeks ago by Estrada's counsel Rene Saguisag in a bid to disprove claims by Ilocos Sur Gov. Luis "Chavit" Singson that he delivered the multi-million-peso tobacco excise tax kickbacks to the former president through his gambling buddy, Charlie "Atong" Ang.

Singson said in his sworn statement that he brought the cash to Estrada's residence at No 1 Polk Street in Greenhills, San Juan on Aug. 31, 1998.

Singson also said that he was met by Ang on Buchanan and Polk Streets, some 112 meters from Estrada's residence when they delivered the money. He later followed Ang to the house of the ousted president.

The defense panel, however, claimed that it was impossible to carry the P130 million by one man.

"Even if it was carried in four boxes, we have determined that it is not possible to bring the said amount," another Estrada lawyer, former Justice Secretary Serafin Cuevas said.

Special Prosecutor Dennis Villa-Ignacio said that except for Saguisag, nobody was claiming, Singson included, that the money was carried in bulk at one time to Estrada's house.

Two weeks ago, the Sandiganbayan's Special Division postponed the presentation of the P130 million cash and the reenactment of its alleged delivery to the former president by Singson.

"Both parties should agree on the parameters otherwise there is no point in staging the ocular inspection," said Associate Justice Francisco Villaruz.

Belgian brothers rule Cannes

It's the Cannes Film Festival, the most prestigious of film events, and the Dardenne brothers are the stars. The brothers, Jean-Pierre and Luc, have made a name for themselves with their gritty, realistic films. Their latest, The 400 Blows, is a masterpiece of modern cinema. It's a story of a young boy, Jean-Pierre, who is being abused by his father. The film is a powerful statement on the state of the world, and the role of the father. It's a film that is both heartbreaking and beautiful. The Dardenne brothers are truly masters of their craft.

The Dardenne brothers are a family of filmmakers. Jean-Pierre and Luc have worked together for over 20 years. They have made several films together, and each has also made solo work. Their films are known for their raw, unpolished quality. They don't use fancy camera tricks or elaborate sets. Instead, they focus on the story and the characters. This is what makes their films so powerful. They are able to capture the essence of a moment, and convey it to the audience in a way that is both simple and profound.

The Dardenne brothers are not just filmmakers; they are also social commentators. Their films often deal with the struggles of the working class, and the impact of globalization. They are able to take a complex issue and make it accessible to a wide audience. This is why their films are so popular. They are able to connect with people on a deep level, and make them think about the world around them. The Dardenne brothers are truly one of a kind.

Car bombs, suicide attacks kill 49 in Iraq

Baghdad — A series of car bombings and suicide attacks killed at least 49 people and wounded more than 100 in a deadly Baghdad weekend pogrom, police said. The attacks, one of the worst in Baghdad since the 2003 invasion, were carried out by Sunni extremists.

At least 49 people were killed and more than 100 wounded in a series of car bombings and suicide attacks in Baghdad, Iraq, on Sunday. The attacks, one of the worst in Baghdad since the 2003 invasion, were carried out by Sunni extremists. The attacks targeted a mix of government buildings, religious sites, and civilian areas. The death toll includes at least 15 Iraqis and 34 foreigners, including 10 Americans.

The attacks were part of a broader campaign of violence by Sunni extremists against the Iraqi government and its allies. The group, known as the Islamic State of Iraq, has been responsible for a series of attacks in recent months. The attacks on Sunday were the deadliest in the series.

Focus on 'jueteng' keeps eyes off Visayas gambling

By Remy Sison

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippine government's focus on cracking down on "jueteng" (illegal gambling) in the Manila area has kept its eyes off the gambling problem in the Visayas region, a senior government official said.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said that the government's focus on "jueteng" in the Manila area has kept its eyes off the gambling problem in the Visayas region, which is also a major source of revenue for the government.

No more 'jueteng' in 3 regions

MANILA, May 19 (AP) — The Philippine National Police (PNP) announced today that it has successfully dismantled three major jueteng (illegal gambling) operations in the country, involving a total of 100 suspects and the seizure of millions of pesos in cash and electronic equipment.

The operations were conducted in the provinces of Cavite, Laguna, and Batangas, where the PNP, in coordination with the Philippine Coast Guard (PCG), raided several large-scale gambling establishments. The suspects, who were arrested during the raids, are currently being held in various police stations across the country.

The PNP said that the operations were part of a larger campaign to eliminate illegal gambling from the country. The agency added that it will continue to conduct similar operations in other regions to ensure that jueteng is completely eradicated.

'Jueteng' still alive in S. Luzon

By Benigno Aquino Jr. (AP)

MANILA, May 19 (AP) — Despite the recent crackdown on illegal gambling, jueteng (illegal gambling) remains a significant problem in the southern part of Luzon, particularly in the provinces of Ilocos Sur and Ilocos Norte. Local officials and law enforcement agencies are still struggling to control the widespread gambling activities in these areas.

In Ilocos Sur, where jueteng has been a major source of income for many residents, local officials are facing pressure to take action. However, they are often met with resistance from the community, as many people rely on the income generated by the gambling establishments. In Ilocos Norte, the situation is similar, with local officials struggling to control the widespread gambling activities.

Figure 1 shows a 2D hexagonal lattice structure. A central atom is labeled '1'. It is surrounded by six atoms in a hexagonal arrangement, labeled '2' through '7'. The distance between the central atom and its nearest neighbors is labeled 'a'. The distance between two adjacent atoms in the second shell is labeled 'b'. The lattice is shown in a perspective view, with a horizontal plane and a vertical axis.

Number of 1 and 2' shells as a function of Number of Bivalves and size class of species

Wage-setting too politicized, says Ecop head

By David M. Rosenberg

THE 1993-1994 wage-setting process in the Philippines is too politicized, says the head of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI). The PCCI president, Manuel V. Pangalos, said that the process is being used as a tool for political maneuvering rather than for setting fair wages for workers.

Pangalos, who is also the president of the Philippine Business and Professional Union (PBPU), said that the process is being used by the government to control the economy. He said that the government is using the process to control the economy by setting wages at a level that is too low for workers to live on.

Malaysian firm gets control of Napawet crown

By David M. Rosenberg

A Malaysian firm has won the right to develop and operate the Napawet oil field in the Philippines. The firm, which is a subsidiary of a Malaysian oil company, has been awarded the right to develop and operate the field for a period of 25 years. The field is located in the Napawet area of the Philippines and is one of the largest oil fields in the country.

Not just genes for Purok

Purely genetic? The answer is no. It's not just genes that control our behavior, but also environmental factors. A new study has shown that the environment can influence the way we think and feel. This is a new discovery that could help us understand ourselves better.

Genetics and environment

CATHY meeting the Iligan City mayor who flew in to join the National Conference on Sustainable Development that she organized with the United Nations Development Program (UNDP)

Sibling success

the Ateneista that's not purely focused on the academics.

Cathy: Ateneo also has a very long tradition of artists. There are a lot of famous writers from Ateneo, and just the fact that the school is encouraging students and recognizing them is, I feel, their investment in building a community of artists. Writers like Gregorio Brillantes, Benilda Santos, Emmanuel Torres, Bienvenido Lumbera—all these people from the '50s, '60s and '70s—would probably not be where they are today had it not been for their mentors in school or the opportunities given to them.

How have your Ateneo years helped you in your artistic formation?

Doug: I took other creative writing classes and I was also given the opportunity to participate in workshops like the National Writer's Workshop and the Ateneo Heights workshop. They have mentorship programs where you can set up appointments with your mentors and they'll go over your story and give you constructive criticism.

Cathy: Both of us have been in Heights (Ateneo's official literary publication) since freshman year, and when we were seniors, we both organized the local writers' workshop. We were both grateful because we both had the opportunity to experience the National Writer's Workshop and other workshops. It is very difficult to organize a workshop, but we felt that we had to do it since so much had been given to us, and we wanted to share it by doing things for the students as well.

How has being active in organizations like Heights and HPAIR (Harvard Project for Asia and International Relations) helped you grow?

Doug: [With HPAIR], I've been to different conferences in Sydney, Seoul and Shanghai, and while HPAIR is more on discourse, you get to meet people and talk about issues and it also opens you up to other cultures.

Cathy: It's really more sustainable development—meeting young people and getting their voices out. To me, the advocacy side is very important. We both organize workshops and outreach programs for public school kids that provide free art workshops. Young people in the Philippines don't always have the venue to interact with those in different fields because it's too costly to organize something for the youth, and these young people don't have the money to avail of these things. And when you get the opportunity to go to an HPAIR conference and you stay in five-star hotels, you meet presidents of different countries, people from Harvard, Yale, Oxford and from all over the world, you realize that you want to bring that home. The idea of giving back is something I feel very strongly about.

What are your post-college plans?

Doug: I used to work at the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) where I was an electronic librarian. I had to look for 150 studies, annotate them and write eight articles. But since it was only for a few weeks, I'm going to look for another job and perhaps get an MA abroad.

Cathy: There are some environmental conferences I have to attend for my youth group, like I just came from Nairobi for the United Nations Youth Retreat for Youth Environmentalists. Who knows, maybe Doug and I may come up with a joint book someday.

Thanks to Ateneo for helping out. Don't worry, we'll use what you've given us and turn it into something you can hopefully be proud of.
